

Free Prize Draw from NEPIC

On 14th April NEPIC launched a free prize draw for anyone living / working / studying in Northumberland, who successfully signs up as a STEM Ambassador before 26th May 2010.

STEM Ambassadors appreciate the importance of linking learning in the classroom, with real life. They understand that more needs to be done to inspire young people to study science, technology, engineering and maths, if we are to retain vital skills in our region, and safeguard our local industry. They are passionate about these subjects, love imparting this enthusiasm on to others and can see how this benefits their own skills set, and is also good for their employer. Ambassadors are linked with local schools for activities such as career talks, assemblies, after school clubs, but unlike some other programmes, there isn't a huge time commitment. They only need give half an hour a year of their time - which even the most senior managers can surely afford! We hope as many people as possible sign up and show their support for this programme.

Here's the link to find out more and enter the prize draw.